

Recent Research and Development on Structural Technology

Masaru TATEYAMA

In the Structural Technology Division, we developed new technology concerning railway structures, including seismic design, retrofitting, maintenance, reduction of construction cost and establishment of design standards.

This paper describes the fundamental concepts of the objects, several examples of our research results and subjects of the research and development.